Sunset after Rain. Old Cottages, Bray. The village of Bray is famous in song for the sake of the fluctuating opinions of its Pastor who "whatsoever King should reign would still be the Vicar of Bray sir", but it is worth notice for its own sake. It has a quaint old Early English Perpendicular Church of St. Michael, and the ancient foundation of Jesus's Hospital (endowed 1627), and at the entrance to the village are some beautiful old flower grown cottages.
